五、閱讀測驗

1. Modern people are used to eating fast food because it only takes minutes to get the meal ready, which fits (適合) people's busy life. However, is fast food really a good choice?

In 2003, Morgan Spurlock tried an interesting but shocking experiment. For a whole month, he ate three meals only at McDonald's. After 30 days, he became 11 kilograms heavier. He got very sick, and his body was weaker than before. The reason for these changes is that fast food has too much fat and salt, and both of them put his health at risk. After the experiment, he made his own experience into the movie, Super Size Me.

After noticing the dangers of fast food, some people now turn to "slow food." Slow food is healthy, homemade, and traditional (傳統的). If you care about your health, maybe you can give slow food a try.
