五、閱讀測驗

1. Giftgiving customs are very different from country to country. As an American, I always treat a bottle of wine as a perfect gift when visiting a friend. However, I noticed that the French prefer to serve their own wine when they invite friends over for dinner. For them, bringing wine as a gift is not the best choice. In fact, it is better to bring a bouquet of flowers or a box of candies as a gift in France.

On the other hand, flowers, in Italy, are only used in funerals. To avoid such embarrassment (尷尬), buying wine is a safer decision there. In addition, the British love and expect candies when their friends return from vacation. As a result, when I pay a visit to a British friend, I often bring a box of chocolates with me. Before traveling abroad, I believe it is important to have a basic understanding of the local cultures so as not to offend the local people.

(1) () The writer is a(n) ____.

(A) American (B) French (C) Italian (D) British

(2) () Who will NOT enjoy a bouquet of flowers as a gift?

(A) The Americans. (B) The French.

(C) The Italians. (D) The British.

(3) () The word expect in the second paragraph (段落) probably means ____.

(A) to keep in mind (B) to dress up as

(C) to take care of (D) to look forward to

(4) () According to the passage, which of the following is true?

(A) A bottle of wine is a perfect gift in France.

(B) The writer may come from Britain.

(C) The Americans often bring candies to funerals.

(D) Sending flowers as a gift in Italy is offensive.

答案：(1) A (2) C (3) D (4) D
